Heritage University and Learning House, Inc. Create New Opportunity for Mid-Career Adults

Louisville, KY, April 26, 2005. Now it's time to finish what you started. We all need faster, affordable and convenient ways to finish our degrees. Online degree programs make it easy for mid-career adults to invest in themselves and for their families' future well being.

Dr. Denzil Edge, President/CEO of Learning House, Inc, is pleased to announce the development of a new opportunity for mid-career adults who wish to complete their degrees online. Beginning in 2005, Heritage University will offer online courses in Film Studies, Business Administration and Law towards a bachelor, master or doctoral degree.

"Heritage meets the needs of mid-career students who have interrupted their college education and find it difficult to return to a traditional campus to complete their degrees," said by Dr. George R. Sutton, Vice President of Heritage University. The Learning House, Inc. will provide an eLearning portal, a learning management system, customized courses, and 24/7/365 technical support services for Heritage University beginning in the fall of 2005. Dr. Denzil Edge had this to add, "The Learning House, Inc. looks forward to partnering with Heritage University to build a high-quality virtual campus with them."

Taking courses at your convenience anyone can finish their degree at an accelerated rate. Online programs are an excellent way for stay-at-home moms to earn a degree without having to leave their kids alone and also the preferred method for the self-employed to earn their Business degree without closing their doors.
