eLearnPortal.com goes Online

Louisville, KY, June 15, 2005 - Helping people connect with opportunities for high quality, online education is the goal of eLearnPortal.com. People who had their college education interrupted may find it difficult to return to a traditional campus, or perhaps they never finished because they live in an area without a college campus nearby. For a growing number of people, online learning is the solution. Online learning overcomes barriers to achieving educational and career goals. Probably the greatest benefit of online learning is the incredible convenience that it offers. Busy students can take courses at their convenience, anytime and anywhere. Instead of trying to juggle classes around a job and family time, online learning gives anyone the flexibility to take classes when they can fit them in.

Internet search engines report that over a million people search the internet for online education opportunities each month, and the Sloan Foundation estimated that 2.6 million students had enrolled in online courses by the end of 2004. The number of institutions of higher education offering online learning opportunities has also grown to meet the demand for online education. With the expansion of online degree offerings, how can students find the right program for them? The answer is eLearnPortal.com.

eLearnPortal.com is the gateway to finding an online degree! From online bachelor degree completion programs to online MBA degrees, eLearnPortal.com is the one stop for finding high quality, online degree opportunities. The colleges and universities listed on eLearnPortal.com provide high quality educational opportunities online. Many of the institutions listed offer complete online degrees.

eLearnPortal.com was created by the Learning House, Inc. for higher education institutions to provide students access to information about high quality education regardless of their geographical location. eLearnPortal.com provides general education and professional programs that prepare students to advance their personal and professional goals. The educational opportunities listed on eLearnPortal.com meet the same standards as do traditional campus offerings.
